CHEATING CHEATERS

PRICE COMMITTEES HAVE DONE LITTLE IN H. C. OF. L. FIGHT

There are as yet no definite results of the work of the county fair price committees in Arizona, according to Timothy A. Riordan, the former food administrator, who after some hesitation recently accepted the position to head of the Arizona investigation of the high cost of living and the formation of county fair price committees at the request of Attorney General Palmer.

Yesterday a copy of the wire sent to Governor Campbell in Washington by Mr. Riordan, in response to the request of the governor for data, was received at the state house, and from the standpoint of those interested in putting their fingers on the reasons for the prevailing high prices the telegram may well be said to be discouraging. The telegram follows:

Flagstaff, Ariz., Aug. 26, 1919. Governor Thomas E. Campbell, Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C.

Regret cannot attend Washington meeting. No progress made by fair price committees as most county administrators absent. Some decline to act; none make final report. Some think profiteering practiced, but none report hoarding. Certainly living costs vastly too high here, especially for workmen with families, but Arizona manufactures few necessities hence high costs originate mostly outside state. Puzzling how to accomplish reductions through food department without power and funds for organization. Best can do is to furnish information files and help as directed.

GREEK CHARGED WITH MURDER OF HARRY CREME

Nick Rigles Is Arrested and Held in Bonds of $20,000—Limps Like Man Who Ran From Scene of Crime

Charged with the murder of Harry Creme, professional gambler, early in the morning of August 15, Nick Rigles, a Greek, was arraigned before Justice Frank De Souza yesterday and his preliminary examination was set for next Wednesday, September 3. His bond was fixed at $20,000 which he was unable to furnish.

Rigles was asked if he would have an attorney, and he replied that one would be provided for him by his "administrator" who is at Bisbee. Who the "administrator" is was not explained, but it is supposed to be a countryman chosen to look after the well being of Greeks within a certain jurisdiction.

Admittedly the owner of the black hat found near the top of the rocky stairs at 41 Wall street a few minutes after the murder of Harry Creme, Rigles was taken into custody Sunday afternoon by Sheriff Montgomery and locked up in the county jail.

Admits Ownership of Hat

This was the first arrest made since a score of suspects were released following the coroner's inquest on August 15, although county and city officials have been working continuously on the mystery since the murder occurred.

Although he admits that he is the owner of the hat found at the scene of the murder and supposedly dropped by the man who killed Harry Creme, Rigles maintains that the hat has not been in his possession since he left Miami more than a year ago.

County officials state that there are other suspicious circumstances which have not been satisfactorily explained by Rigles.

Rigles, who lived in a rooming house kept by Mrs. C. Harris at 219 East Jefferson street, is a man whose habits are said to have been well known. It was the custom of Rigles, it was said, to return to his room about midnight each night, to remain there until about 10.30 or 11 o'clock next morning and to leave for downtown where he had no regular employment, where he remained until he returned home again late at night.

Knew of Murder

Harry Creme was murdered at about 2:40 o'clock on Monday morning, August 15.

Between midnight and 1 o'clock on that morning, Mrs. Harris is alleged to have told the officers, Rigles returned to his room. He remained there for five or ten minutes and then went out, according to the statement attributed to Mrs. Harris. She did not hear him return, she said, but declares that when Rigles made his appearance from his room at about 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon he said to her:

"There's been a murder."

Questioned later by the officers, Rigles is said to have maintained that he had been in his room all night, denying the statement of Mrs. Harris that he had left it a few minutes after his arrival shortly after midnight.

Walks With Limp

Rigles was asked by the officers how he knew there had been a murder if he had spent the entire night in his room. The Greek is said to have replied that he got up from his bed at about 6 o'clock and went down near the Santa Fe depot to buy a sandwich. At the restaurant, he said, a man told him of the murder.

Rigles formerly lived at Bisbee where he was employed in the mines. He was severely injured in an accident from which he probably will not recover. He looks and acts like a sick man.

He has a noticeable limp, such as was observed by Jack Shields, Earl Wright, Henry Alphin and Ed Halloran who saw a man run from the south end of Wall street immediately after the shooting of Creme. They testified at the coroner's inquest that this man walked with a decided limp. But all of them agreed that when he approached Center street he stopped, straightened up and quit limping. Whether Rigles could so control his limp is a matter yet to be determined.

Denies All Knowledge of Crime

The English used by Rigles is very broken. Shields at the inquest testified that the man he followed pointed a gun at him and told him to go back. He was not questioned as to the accent of the man. Asked as to whether he thought he was a foreigner, Shields replied that he rather thought he was, but that opinion was based on his view of him in the very meager light. He said nothing regarding his accent.

Rigles denies all knowledge of the murder of Harry Creme and insists that the so-called circumstantial evidence has no connection with him. When subjected to examination at the inquest he was entirely composed. He eats hearty meals and is one of Sheriff Montgomery's best boarders.

ASKS TRANSFER LIMIT ON GRAND AVE. LINE SOON TO BE OPENED

Application for permission to charge an extra fare of persons transferring to the Grand avenue car line from some other car line, after the cars pass Fifteenth and Roosevelt streets, was filed with the corporation commission yesterday by the Phoenix Street Railway company. Under the application's requests, transfers would be good on the Grand avenue line only as far as Fifteenth and Roosevelt, the city limits, and after passing that point persons riding on transfer would be required to pay an additional fare.

However, according to the application, this would not apply to persons paying the original fare on the Grand avenue line, who would have to pay only one fare. The Grand avenue line is now being reconstructed and according to the petition will be in service shortly.

A hearing on the car company's application will be held by the commission at 10 a. m. September 18, probably in the senate chamber of the state house. As the hearing will be public, a number of interested persons are expected to express their opinions on both sides of the case.

"By Proxy" at the Columbia

Roy Stewart in one of the big westerns of his new series will be the feature attraction at the Columbia theater for today only in "By Proxy," a comedy drama that has scored heavily throughout California.

Stewart, always a big favorite here, is destined to win new friends in this offering, which affords him wide opportunity to display his many talents.

"By Proxy" has a strong leaning in the direction of a comedy but there are sufficient dramatic moments to keep the suspense ever present. It is a western production. It depicts the west as it really is—not as it was half a century or more ago. Even on the range, there are plenty of humorous activities; the cowboy's life is not altogether one of gun play, bandit chasing and the like.

And in "By Proxy," the screen shows the funny happenings in the big buck house of the range rider.

A Pathe Review, featuring the ever-popular slow motion pictures, and a Current Topics are the augmenting films for today.

Tomorrow, Clara Kimball Young comes in "Cheating Cheaters," from one of the most successful of all stage dramas.

The New Draperies

New drapery materials are coming. Scarcely a day passes that does not bring something new to the drapery department. We anticipate that this will be a most interesting section of the store this Fall. Last season we acquired somewhat of a reputation particularly among winter visitors for displaying the desirable patterns and colors. They not only approved but they bought and Dorris-Heyman drapery materials were distributed from West Virginia to Honolulu.

The stock will be as good as we can have it this season, and there will be no disappointment to those who seek fine draperies.
